This week when we tried to relate the information in biomimicry taxonomy and asknature.org to our topic, we felt it was a bit difficult because the core of our solution was based on AI assistance for coastal flooding problems, so it didn't seem particularly relevant. However, when we opened our eyes beyond direct correlation, we found the task very interesting! Great reefs, underwater shelters, etc. we tried to incorporate them into our project and got what we thought were great results haha!
